Dayton Inventor Gives Up Esme Morning Trip Because of Wind.

Orville Wright went to Fort Myer this morning, passing his breakfast by in day that Esme William Howard, coun the hope that he might fly before the selor of the British embassy here, has wind rose.

The aeroplane was taken out of its shed and by 9:30 the aviator was ready, the engine was tuned up, the photo-

Mr. Wright watched the breeze that mautical sharks, and decided he wouldn't risk a flight. He came back to breakfast then, looking a bit tired, but confident that he can fly this evening between 4 and 6 o'clock. The aeroplane was left on the track, so that there is not likely to be much delay when Mr. Wright goes out later, provided the breeze has died down to a decorous degree.

Crowds Not Large.

At no time have there been more than 1.500 people present at a flight, and, according to students of human nature at Fort Mr. if the Wright exhibitions were a vertised like those of Farman In New York, he would probably pull 10,000 spectators.

Interest in the formation of a Washington aeronautical society is being "franned" constantly by Augustus Post.

ington aeronautical society is being "fanned" constantly by Augustus Post, of the Aero Club; Dr. Zahm, of the lieved that a meeting at which the organization may be perfected will be held shortly, as Dr. Zahm has been do-ing much quiet work among persons likely to be interested in such an organi-

The men most qualified to speak of the new society believe that it will have as members, when fully launched, not only scientists, who are particularly well informed in aeronautics, but that there will be scores of other prominent Washingtonians in it. It is not desired, these promoters say, that this club shall be a top-heavy organization, which would die of the fact that it holds within it only one cleas of men—aeronautical experts. They wish to see men of other professions, who have some desire to become connected with such an organization, join with the scientists.

Calls it Aeromobile.

Emile Berliner, the patentee of a portion of the common or garden variety of telephone transmitter, came out to-day in a statement, which fully confirmed the story printed in The Times of last Friday, concerning a flying ma-of last Friday, concerning a flying machine which be is building.

Mr. Berliner calls his new machine an "acromobile." He says that it has no gas bag and no acroplane. "It is simply." he so'd, "a motor weighing 109 pounds; some framework, gearing, and a two-bladed fan, the latter having a surface of about thirty-six square feet. It is capable of lifting horizontally $20 pounds."

He expects the aeromobile to attain a speed of at least forty miles an hour. Speaking of the uses of such machines, Mr. Berliner said: "Aeromobiles would be model apparatus to have on board war vessels to be sent up at a moment's notice for scanning the area beyond the ship's horizon for the vessels of the enemy. They would be hard to hit, and the propellers could have steel spurs which would rin the enemy's balloons by merely touch ing them.

Defect in Lever.

Defect in Lever. After a flight yesterday afternoon which lasted but fifty-four seconds, and which was terminated because of a slight defect in the working of one of the steering levers, Wright declared it one of the most successful he has yet made.
